DETAILED ACTION

This is in response to a letter for patent filed on March 22nd, 2001 in which claims 1-26 are presented for examination. Claims 1-26 are pending in the letter.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

1. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

2. Claims 1-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

The basis of this rejection is set forth in a two prong test of:

- (1) whether the invention is within the technological arts; and
- (2) whether the invention produces a useful, concrete and tangible result.

For a claimed to be statutory, the claimed invention must be within the technological arts.

Mere ideas in the abstract (i.e., abstract idea law of nature, natural phenomena) that do not apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts fail to promote the “progress of science and the useful arts” and therefore are found to be non-statutory subject matter. For a method claim to pass the muster, the recited method must somehow apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts.

In the present case the inventive concept in claim 1-11 only recites an abstract idea. The recited steps do not apply, involve, use or advance the technological arts since all the steps can be performed in the mind of the user or by use of pencil and paper and no specific technology (e.g. computer, processor) is expressly recited in the body of the claims. In re Toma (CCPA 197 USPQ 852 (1978)).

Although the recited method produces a useful, concrete and tangible result, since the claimed invention, as a whole, is not within the technological arts as explained above, claim 1-11 deemed to be directed to non-statutory subject matter.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claims 1-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Felkey et al (U.S. PG Pub 2002/0161667).

5. As per claims 1, 7-15 and 21-26, Felkey et al teach a method for providing procurement services to a plurality of customer companies, comprising establishing a user profile for each person authorized by a customer company to access the procurement services including a vendor catalog, a blanket order procurement contract for goods or services, a user profile table, costs centers, and accounting general ledger codes with company group specific accounting rules and defaults., associating each the company with a company group of related companies, the user profile specifying for each the user a user company and company group, providing for each procurement resource to be shared among the users a resource profile specifying for each resource those the companies to have access to the procurement resource; and responsive to the user profile and the resource profiles, controlling user access to the procurement resources (see abstract, figs 1, 2, 4, 5a-6a, paragraphs 0012, 0015, 0037, 0046, 0047, 0064, 0051, 0058, 0088)

6. As per claims 2 and 16, Felkey et al teach a method further comprising providing the procurement resources in a front-end catalog and requisition server (see abstract, figs 1, 2, 4, 5a-6a, paragraphs 0012, 0015, 0037, 0046, 0047, 0064, 0051, 0058, 0088).
7. As per claims 3 and 17, Felkey et al teach a method further comprising receiving a user request from a first client browser to log in to the front-end server; responsive to the request, providing a user interface at the client browser only to procurement resources authorized by the user profile and the resource profiles (see abstract, figs 1, 2, 4, 5a-6a, paragraphs 0012, 0015, 0037, 0046, 0047, 0064, 0051, 0058, 0088).
8. As per claims 4 and 18, Felkey et al teach a method further comprising receiving requests from a plurality of users authorized by different company groups to enter a requisition to a vendor with respect to the same catalog or contract resource; and generating separate purchase orders to the vendor with respect to requisitions originating with users from each the company group (see abstract, figs 1, 2, 4, 5a-6a, paragraphs 0012, 0015, 0037, 0046, 0047, 0064, 0051, 0058, 0088).

9. As per claims 5 and 19, Felkey et al teach a method further comprising the steps of: leveraging procurement buys from a plurality of company groups with respect to the same volume specific contract for goods or services (see abstract, figs 1, 2, 4, 5a-6a, paragraphs 0012, 0015, 0037, 0046, 0047, 0064, 0051, 0058, 0088).
10. As per claims 6 and 20, Felkey et al teach a method further comprising allowing the user to apply procurement charges to charge centers only within his company group (see abstract, figs 1, 2, 4, 5a-6a, paragraphs 0012, 0015, 0037, 0046, 0047, 0064, 0051, 0058, 0088).

Conclusion

11. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. (see form 892).
